spectfully invite your attention to the claims of this Company to public confidence support. It was organized in 1866, amid the gloom and despondency following the close of hostilities, and was the pioneer in its peculiar benificent field. Having to contend with the almost universal distrust in the stability of Southern Institutions, its unparalleled success is not only an earnest of abili-

thousands of its widows and orphans—which justified the following paragraph from Massachusetts Reports for the year 15:4, page 224:

Our Companies were no losers by this; on the other hand, not a few of them profitted by the forfeiture of Southern policies to an amount far greater than sufficient to cover the subsequent was riches. cient to cover the subsequent war risks of their members'—made them timid about trusting any institution of similar character. The Southern Life, by its success, has proven the

We have been solicited, and have, in order to found our grand organization for the whole South, consented to join this worthy enterprise. Founded on a solid moneyed basis, with an ample capital and large accomplain, with an ample capital and large accomplaint. ple capital and large accumulation of assets, its ratio of assets to liabilities (the true test of a Company's strength)equals all the sider Companies. While there are several departments, they are departments of the same Company, and each and every one guarantees the nav.

Have the people of these States any conception of the immense sums of money yearly taken from the entire South for Life Insurance? By calculation, based on the best statistics which can be obtained, it is estimated that a sum of not less than Six or Eight Millions of Dollars ($6,000,000) to ($8,000,000) is sent every year from the South for this purpose; aggregate amount since the war over Fitty Millions of Dollars. We ask the people to consider how rapidly and into what gigantie proportions every material interest of our section could be developed by the retention, and lending at reasonable interest in our midst, of these enormous sums, and the secumulation of compound interest thereon.

In recommending it as being far superior to any Oil or Burning Fluid that we have ever used.

It is entirely free from grease, and does not require more than one-tenth of he labor to keep the Lamps clean and nice thatif does any other Oils that we have used.
